Our Community. Our Safety.

DIVISION OF PUBLIC SAFETY STRATEGIC PLAN 2022-2025

MESSAGE FROM THE CHIEF

Dear campus community member:

The Division of Public Safety, which includes the University of Illinois Police Department, is thoughtful and deliberate in the way it approaches community policing. It is codified in our mission, vision and values, and we are committed to instilling 21st Century Policing principles into every interaction we have.

UIPD has been a leader in progressive approaches to campus safety, but there remains much work to be done. This strategic plan lays out our primary focus areas for the next three years, which are intentionally responsive to the needs voiced by our community during the past year.

We acknowledge the history of policing as a profession, and we pledge to be leaders in learning from past mistakes and moving forward. Criminal justice reform will be a common thread through everything we do in the next three years, and we view this as an opportunity. It is an opportunity to enhance our service to the community and introduce better resources that are sensitive to the needs of all people. It is an opportunity to engage in sincere conversations about what a safe community looks like and how we can be active partners in creating a supportive campus environment.

Repairing systemic inequalities in all facets of our society is not something that can happen overnight, and perhaps not even in three years. But the time to start is now, and this strategic plan sets the course to achieving that outcome.

Sincerely,

Alice Cary
Chief of Police and Executive Director of Public Safety

LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

As a part of a land-grant institution, the University of Illinois Police Department has a responsibility to acknowledge the historical context in which it exists. Our facilities are currently on the lands of the Peoria, Kaskaskia, Piankashaw, Wea, Miami, Mascoutin, Odawa, Sauk, Mesquaki, Kickapoo, Potawatomi, Ojibwe, and Chickasaw Nations. It is necessary for us to acknowledge these Native Nations and for us to work with them as we move forward as an institution. Over the next 150 years, we will be a vibrant community inclusive of all our differences, with Native peoples at the core of our efforts.

WHO WE ARE

The Division of Public Safety works to further the university's academic mission by providing a safe place where our students, faculty and staff can excel academically and professionally.

The University of Illinois Police Department is a 24-hour operation, 365 days a year. Our officers have full police authority just like any other police department. UIPD is fully accredited, and we offer all the traditional police services — but unlike traditional police departments, those services are uniquely tailored to meet the needs of our university in a community-based manner meant to improve and maintain a healthy climate and quality of campus life.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS POLICE DEPARTMENT

- Our 24-hour patrol operations are the backbone of our effort to keep our campus community safe. Patrol officers provide a quick response to 911 calls and more.
- The Community Outreach and Support Team works in an educational capacity to empower individuals to take care of themselves and others. C.O.A.S.T. also provides behavioral and crisis support.
- Detectives in our Investigations division are specially trained to support and care for survivors of sexual assault, as well as investigate other crimes of a violent nature.
- Internal units provide specialized resources to provide for campus safety, including bomb detection and disposal; special weapons and tactics; patrol K-9s and comfort K-9s; special victim resources; bicycle- and ATV-mounted patrol; and others.

DIVISION OF PUBLIC SAFETY

- Staff members in Emergency Management work full-time to ensure every university facility is prepared for otherwise unimaginable emergencies.
- Compliance staff members work in an ongoing effort to maintain campus compliance with mandates set forth in legislation like the Clery Act, Violence Against Women Act, Title IX, Preventing Sexual Violence in Higher Education Act, protection of minors and many other federal and state laws that regulate university procedures.
- Our security officers work to provide an extra layer of security, primarily around residence halls and libraries. Security officers are empowered to intervene when they observe unsafe conditions or call for a police response.
- Student patrol officers also provide observational security and SafeWalks, a free walking escort service available to students, faculty members, and staff so they do not have to travel alone on campus during nighttime hours.
- Key civilian employees like telecommunicators, records staff, business office staff, information technology specialists and facilities staff support the organization and its ability to achieve its mission.

This balance of police and public safety services aims to further our department's mission to provide a safe and secure university environment where academics, research and public service can flourish.

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

UIPD's story begins in 1895, when UI President Andrew Draper decided that the just 28-year-old university needed night watch personnel to protect the grounds from a perceived increase in campus crime. By 1911, university leaders had determined that the security effort had been successful enough to warrant hiring two full-time police officers – giving birth to the University of Illinois Police Department.

Through the early decades, UIPD officers were tasked with minor duties, like making sure doors were locked and reporting smokers to the dean. In the 1960s, the growth of adjacent communities and increasing political turmoil on college campuses – some of it violent – made the job of campus policing more complex.

By 1964, the state of Illinois had passed the University of Illinois Act (110 ILCS 305/7), giving the University of Illinois Board of Trustees the power to appoint university police officers who hold the same authority as city police departments. The new statute kicked off a transition that, over time, transformed UIPD from more of a campus security division into a full-fledged police department. Today, UIPD is fully accredited (it was the first university police department in Illinois to achieve accreditation) and provides the same services as a traditional police department.

It is important to acknowledge that the history of policing in the United States has at times been problematic, especially with regard to how minority communities have been policed. Only by acknowledging this dynamic can we recognize how minority communities have been affected and how we can move forward in a more supportive way. As we look toward the future, we are committed to rooting out systemic inequalities and extending the positive things police do to keep our communities safe.

OVERVIEW

The overarching vision of this strategic plan is to position the Division of Public Safety as a leader in implementing the ideals of modern policing. The six pillars of President Obama's Task Force on 21st Century Policing form the basis of our three-year goals, and we have aligned with a number of shared goals from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign's 2018-2023 strategic plan, titled "The Next 150."

The goals of the Division of Public Safety align with the "The Next 150" to make the institutional transformations necessary to remove the barriers, assumptions, and biases that limit opportunities. We want the graduates and future alumni of the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign to be responsible citizens and leaders who value knowledge, creativity, global awareness, and social and cultural understanding.

Our vision for the future is ambitious, highlighted by our community engagement, transparency, and shared commitment to institutional goals. This plan acknowledges the challenges presented by the current national climate and the role of law enforcement in perpetuating systemic inequalities in our country. The Division of Public Safety is using this moment to reimagine our public engagement efforts. Interaction with our community will be woven into the fabric of everything we do. Through careful handling of resources, innovations in services, and focused efforts to find new efficiencies, we will conserve financial resources that can be reinvested across our strategic priorities. Our vision for the future is ambitious, and engagement, transparency and shared commitment to our institutional goals will be necessary.

In addition to our long-standing core values of justice, respect, and integrity, this strategic plan notably includes two additional divisional core values: inclusion and trust. Although these values have always been at the core of what we do, we have recognized the benefit of explicitly calling attention to these core values through partnerships and dialogue with our stakeholders. We must be leaders in promoting diversity and equity in everything we do, from internal practices and policies to our contacts on the street. And a mutual trust between police officers and community members must be at the core of our efforts to build genuine relationships and an open, transparent look into our operations.

An abridged version of this plan presented as a matrix with all goals, deliverables and deadlines is available as Appendix A.

STRATEGIC INITIATIVE 1: COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

DEFINITION

Community Engagement is the process of working collaboratively with community groups ie. students, staff, faculty, and a community at large to address problems that impact the well-being of those groups. It strives for to better engage the community to achieve long-term and sustainable outcomes, processes, relationships, discourse, decision-engagement, and/other implementation.

Community engagement from UIPD can inform community members about city/campus/police matters, help people understand how and why decisions are made, give people a voice in the community and direction of the department, and enlist help in shaping decisions. UIPD enlists a variety of avenues that citizens use for requests, inquiries, feedback, complaints, and input. This flow of information is most effective when it works both ways and there is a broad and diverse involvement with varying viewpoints and perspectives. Engagement methods that can easily be skewed by the efforts of special interest groups should be carefully evaluated or monitored, as results will not typically reflect the opinions of the overall community. Engagement efforts should not be expected to represent a "clear majority" as an official vote of the people.

COMMITMENT

The University of Illinois Police Department is committed to continuing to support our campus by providing a safe and positive environment for our students, staff, and visitors. We accomplish this by our steadfast devotion to maintaining long existing relationships as well as establishing new ones.

GOALS

MAINTAIN AN INFORMED PUBLIC.

Informing the public about police matters is a responsibility of UIPD. The public should have readily accessible information about processes, actions, events, and proceedings. When people in the community have a clear understanding of the facts regarding UIPD functions, intentions, and processes, they can more confidently and efficiently interact with UIPD.

- Provide timely, accurate, helpful, and easily accessible information to the community via methods and platforms designed to reach a wide audience.
- Make it as easy as possible for students, staff, faculty, and the greater Urbana-Champaign community to communicate with UIPD.
- Facilitate increased interaction between officers.
- Educate the community members about how they can interact with the UIPD and provide easily accessible ways to be involved.

Success indicator

Enhanced knowledge of the community’s understanding of our mission.

SEEK UNDERSTANDING OF COMMUNITY VIEWPOINTS.

Community engagement can be an exploration of diverse perspectives and a quest to understand the needs, desires, concerns, and ideas of the public. UIPD is committed to ensuring police actions and decisions are consistent with the community values and therefore should consult with or include the public to understand public perspectives ahead of specific projects, actions, or efforts.

- When appropriate or time permitting, consult with the community to understand the perspectives in visioning or planning for significant projects and/or initiatives.
- Use community engagement processes to strengthen department decision-making and actions through reinforced understanding of community needs.

Success indicator

Increase the department’s understanding of the community we serve.

TAP INTO THE COLLECTIVE INTELLIGENCE OF THE COMMUNITY.

Community members have a wealth of ideas and information, involving them in helping to process through and evaluate issues or concerns can help the department make better decisions. Working with the community to develop solutions can produce highly imaginative and relevant results that might not have manifested otherwise.

- Consider involving citizens or community members in all phases of a project, including defining problems, visioning, exploring matters, evaluating and creating alternatives, and discovering remedies to a situation.
- Build capacity within UIPD to assess, plan for, and facilitate community involvement in processes. This could be accomplished through specific engagement guidelines as well as dedicated time, staffing and resources.

Success indicator

Increased positive interaction and engagement with the community.

ENSURE TRANSPARENCY IN DEPARTMENT DECISIONS, ACTIONS, AND DECISION-MAKING PROCESSES.

Transparency and trust are tightly intertwined concepts. When decision-making processes and reasoning are clearly outlined, explained, observed, and understood, people are better able to trust that a decision was best for the community at that specific time.

- Create a plan in place to proactively help the community understand how and why decisions were made.
- Create and maintain a space for officers to be informed and feel as if they are “in the know” to be able to confidently reinforce the department's motives.

These include participation in dialogue with community, student, and faculty groups, creation of a local chapter of the Police Athletic/Activities League (PAL), creation of the REACH unit (Response, Evaluation, and Crisis Help) to improve police response to crisis situations and establishing the Comfort K9 unit. COAST is such an integral part of the Division's public outreach and engagement initiatives that it must be identified as a strategic initiative in this plan.
